Quality Services Review Developmental Disability Services

Introduction

The Quality Services Review (QSR) process has been developed by the Developmental Disabilities Services Division (DDAS) in collaboration with service providers, individuals, and families, and is based on the DDSD consumer outcomes (page ii). These outcomes will be utilized by the review team to monitor and review the quality of services. The review process reflects agreement by all stakeholders that face to face interviews with individuals receiving services, agency staff, and home providers are key elements for an effective quality assurance process. The Quality Services Review is one component of a broader effort to maintain and improve the quality of services. Other components supported by the review team include monitoring and follow-up with regard to: agency designation, waiver eligibility, housing safety and accessibility, monitoring of critical incident reports, and training and other technical assistance as negotiated with each agency.

It is acknowledged that the uncertain financial and budgetary conditions with accompanying reduction of services across the state have had an effect on services in general. The discussion of the realities of service provision during these difficult times and ways to interpret the DDSD Consumer Outcomes that reflect this reality is an essential element in the ongoing quality of services. The fact remains that these outcomes reflect our basic values and the potential dangers of placing limits on these outcomes would affect our system's core values of being future oriented and helping individuals develop future focused goals and services designed to meet these goals. It is important that this review process be seen as promoting best practices and the ideals of our system while being realistic as to resources available at the agencies for provision of these services. With this in mind, a commitment has been made for the review process and reviewers to uphold that realistic view while helping the staff at the agencies keep the spirit of our values at the heart of service provision, focusing on individual's growth and creative ways to meet the current financial and resource realities whether they be limited or more plentiful.

Each developmental disabilities services provider will participate in a DDSD quality review within a two-year cycle. These reviews are intended to supplement the agency's own internal quality assurance processes, and are also intended to meet DDSD's commitment to the State of Vermont and the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services. Whenever possible, agency designation reviews will be conducted concurrently with the QSR.

Notification, sample size and sample selection

An agency will be notified in writing of an upcoming review approximately forty-five (45) days prior to the beginning of the review. In this correspondence, the lead reviewer for the agency will set up a scheduling meeting to occur thirty (30) days before the beginning of the review. At the scheduling meeting, the lead reviewer and nurse reviewer will meet with representatives from the agency to set the final sample, review dates and discuss an overview of the process. They will also clarify the use of the electronic file review and expectation that the files will be available to the reviewers within five (5) business days via either the secure FTP (SFTP) site or through remote login to the agency's electronic records. It is estimated that this electronic file review process occurring remotely from our offices will give the reviewer time to review the information in a more in-depth manner and therefore be better informed as to the individual and his/her services than the time that would be allowed on-site at the agency. The key aspects of this plan are detailed at the end of this summary.

The lead reviewer will send e-mail notices to staff at DDS to inform state staff that the review is about to be scheduled and seek input about the agency, service provision, examples of positive practice, areas of improvement and potential individuals to include in the sample. The public guardians and other DDS staff who have regular contact with the agency are encouraged to share this type of information with the lead reviewer in order to gain as broad a range of perspectives as possible.

The sample for quality services reviews is chosen to gain input from individuals receiving services and examine a variety of services in order to obtain a "snapshot" of the agency as a whole. The lead reviewer will obtain a complete list of all individuals served by the provider agency along with related information such as services, recent critical incident reports, etc. The lead reviewer selects a preliminary sample of no less than 15% of the provider's Home and Community Based Services (HCBS) caseload (10% for Howard Center due to the number of individuals they serve and available state resources). Once the sample has been selected, the Lead Quality Management Reviewer and Team Nurse meets with the provider to review the makeup of the sample, agree to a final sample and other logistics. To the degree possible, the sample will be reflective of the spectrum of supports provided by the agency. The sample may include:

- Individuals new to services
- Individuals receiving a variety of supports including: residential, community, employment and/or respite
- Individuals with significant medical issues
- Individuals with both "high-end" budgets and minimal services
- Individuals presenting with needs that challenge the service delivery system
- Individuals suggested by the agency to be part of the sample.

The agency will be asked to notify individuals and guardians of the review and its purpose, and to schedule a time for a reviewer to meet with the individual and their support staff. A complete written schedule indicating review dates and appointments times will be returned to the lead reviewer at least two weeks prior to the first day of the review. Agencies should also inform the lead reviewer of any unique circumstances that may be relevant prior to meeting the individual. In addition, for each review, the lead reviewer and agency staff may choose to identify one or two broad areas to be included as part of the review. These broad areas may include employment, intake, residential services, worker training and recruitment, clinical services, offender services, crisis and respite, the agency's internal quality assurance process, etc. This will be identified as an Area of Concern and commented on in the final quality services review report. The intention is to give the review team and DDSD staff an opportunity to understand how this system works for a particular agency, share best practices across the state, and help agencies develop effective practices to manage these services.

The review process

The purpose of an agency review is to ascertain the quality of the services/supports provided by the agency and to ensure that minimum standards are met with respect to DDSD guidelines for developmental disability services (Health and Wellness, Positive Behavior Supports, Individual Support Agreement, etc.) An individual review consists of the record review mentioned above, a visit and conversation with the individual and their support team, a conversation with the person's guardian/family where applicable, and a review of the individual's agency file.

Visit with individual: During the review, a reviewer will meet with the individual to ask about their satisfaction with the services they receive, the degree to which they are able to make choices about their life and their services, how well services meet their needs, and to gauge the quality of the supports provided. Although the individual may choose not to meet with the reviewer, the review team relies heavily on the individual's perspective. This interview should be an informal conversation with the individual. The reassurance of a familiar person may help the individual overcome their reservations and be at ease. The presence of such a person when the individual has communication challenges is encouraged, as this may help the reviewer best understand what is going on in the individual's life. It is the individual's choice whether to participate in the interview independently or with support. It is important to give the individual the opportunity to meet with the reviewer in private in case there is information concerning staff or of a confidential nature that s/he want to share.

For individuals living in a developmental home or shared living arrangement it is important to meet with the person in his/her home. This allows the reviewer an opportunity to understand the individual's relationship with their home provider. It is also helpful, but not necessary to meet in the homes of individuals living independently, and receiving home supports, especially if these supports are significant in helping the individual remain living independently in the home. When an individual does not receive home supports, the reviewer can meet with the individual in a place of their choosing. It is helpful to consider the potential for discussion of private information when choosing to meet in more public places.

Visit with staff: As part of the review, the reviewer will meet with key staff including: the services coordinator, community support staff, employment staff, and home provider as appropriate to aid in understanding of staff roles and how services are meeting the individual's needs.

Discussion with guardians and family members: The perspective of family members and guardians is important in assessing the quality of an individual's services. It is not required that guardians and family members be present during the interviews. If they were not present, each reviewer will attempt to reach the appropriate people to gather their input.

Records Review: The review of the individual's file is done with two purposes in mind. Primarily, the file review helps the reviewers to better understand who the individual is, the issues in his/her life, and the role of services. Secondly, the file review helps the reviewer assess how the agency is meeting developmental disabilities service guidelines. The majority of the file review will be done prior to the onsite portion of the review via having specific documents uploaded to the GlobalSCAPE SFTP site for retrieval by the lead reviewer and review by the assigned reviewer for the individual's services. The list of documents and outline of the electronic process is included in this document or via remote access into the agency's electronic records for the individuals in the sample. If the reviewers are given remote access to the agency's electronic records it is important that they be given necessary permissions to print documents to aide in their in-depth review. The reviewer will also review the individual's file onsite at the agency to look at additional documentation that was added from the time information was made available to the reviewers and the onsite visit at the agency.

A summary of the findings from this process will be reviewed with the service coordinator and presented as an attachment to the quality services report. (See attached: sample report outline; Attachment A: ISA Guidelines Quality Services Review Findings.)

Role of observation: Observation is an integral part of the review and in assessing the quality of services. Observations of interactions between staff and the individual are wonderful opportunities to gain information about the relationships and dynamics between individual and staff, as well as the skills and effectiveness of staff. Observations in the individual's home provide information about his/her comfort level there, safety or fire hazards, space for privacy and personal possessions, interactions with staff and other important people in the individual's lives if they are present, etc.

Medical Review: The nurse reviewer will perform a full medical review for a subsample of all the individuals being reviewed each day. These will primarily be individuals receiving 24 hour residential supports. For the remaining individuals in the sample, the nurse will perform a medical file review. The purpose of these medical reviews is to assess the quality of medical care received with respect to the DDS Consumer Outcomes. A full medical review will include a home visit for one of the individuals whose services were reviewed each day. To the degree possible this visit will coincide with a scheduled residential visit. Health care records will be reviewed to assess the quality of documentation and consistency with the Health and Wellness Guidelines. A summary of these findings will be reviewed with the service coordinator and presented as an attachment to the quality services report (Attachment B: Medical Guidelines Quality Review Findings).

Discussion with service coordinator: As part of each individual review the reviewer will meet with the service coordinator to ensure that the reviewer understands issues, services, and supports, and to provide feedback to the service coordinator regarding the quality of services and documentation. When there are significant health and safety issues identified during the individual review these issues will be brought to the attention of the program director or their designee as well.

Evaluating and Using Data: Practices observed during a review, in conjunction with information obtained through discussions with the individual, family/guardian and staff, will be rated relative to each of the review outcomes and indicators. Practices will be rated as Exceeded or Examples of Positive Practices (EPP) which reflects practice exceeding the standard, a rating of Met which reflects practice meeting the standard or a rating of Unmet or Necessary Change which reflects practices that do not meet the standard. This information will also be reflected in the summary section of the report. Trends observed, where practices do not meet a standard for a large percentage of the sample, may lead to “Areas of Importance.” Areas of Importance are those trends as well as issues observed that involve systems at the agency with the potential to affect a number of individuals. System examples would be issues with the agency’s intake process, clinical services, or health and wellness monitoring.

Feedback discussion and report

Feedback: Within two weeks from the last day of the review, the lead reviewer and nurse reviewer will meet with agency staff to provide brief verbal feedback from the review. The session is intended to both provide the agency a summary of trends noted during the review and to gather information from the agency’s perspective about the review process. Information provided during the feedback meeting summarizes trends noted during the review in specific areas (see attached report format). The feedback focuses on the agency’s strengths as well as recommendations, Areas of Concern, requirements for improvement and any identified Areas of Importance.

Report: The report is a formal mechanism for notifying the agency of the review team's findings and is due to the agency within 45 days of feedback meeting. The report consists of:

- A brief introduction,
- A summary of key service areas along with strengths and opportunities for improvement,
- A table that provides specific information about examples of positive practice (EPP) and specific instances that do not meet the standard Necessary Changes (NC)
- Recommendations where applicable
- Area where the review team looked at a specific service or system within the agency to identify ways to enhance or prevent decline in quality (Area of Concern)
- Areas in which the agency is expected to show evidence of system improvements (Areas of Importance).

The table is organized according to the DDS consumer outcomes and indicators, and for each indicator provides a tally of practices that either meet, exceed, or do not meet the standard. (A standard is the expectation around a particular indicator.)

Agency response

An agency is required to provide a written response to the review team's report within 45 days of receiving the report. The response must consist of a written plan of how the agency will address necessary changes, areas of concern and areas of importance, if applicable. If there is significant disagreement about findings that cannot be resolved between the agency and the review team, the agency may submit an appeal, in writing, to the Director of the Developmental Disabilities Services Division.

The lead reviewer will review the agency's written response and inform the agency in writing within 30 days as to whether the plan is accepted as written or what areas need to be further defined before the plan is accepted.

Systems Support and Development

Technical Assistance as part of the Quality Review process is based on the following premises:

- Developmental disability services are stronger when there is a strong collaborative working relationship between agencies and the Developmental Disabilities Services Division.
- Services benefit, when technical assistance is available on an ongoing basis.
- Services and agencies benefit by a point of view independent of the agency.

The DDS lead reviewer will be available to provide onsite Technical Assistance visits at the agency. The parameters of these visits will be negotiated by the reviewer at the request of the DS Director or his/her designee and a schedule developed as appropriate. The lead reviewer will initiate a visit at a minimum of once a year with a goal of three visits per year, if no other scheduled visits are agreed upon. These visits may include the minimum activities listed below along with issues and areas of concern requested by the agency director or his/her management team. Examples of such areas are also listed below.

Feedback from these technical assistance visits will be provided to the agency director/management team on an on-going basis and will be used in part to guide the focus of future visits and assistance in meeting their regulatory obligations. Trends discovered during these Technical Assistance visits may be used to identify areas of focus or individuals to be included in the agency's next quality services review.

At a minimum off-site activities will consist of:

- Follow-up and support around Critical Incident Reports and the situations being reported, including a review of trends, procedures and systems issues that may have led to the situation or prevention of future occurrences,
- Follow-up on incomplete Housing Safety and Accessibility reviews,
- Monitoring information collected through satisfaction surveys as well as appeals and grievances.

On-site activities, entailing a visit to the agency, may consist of:

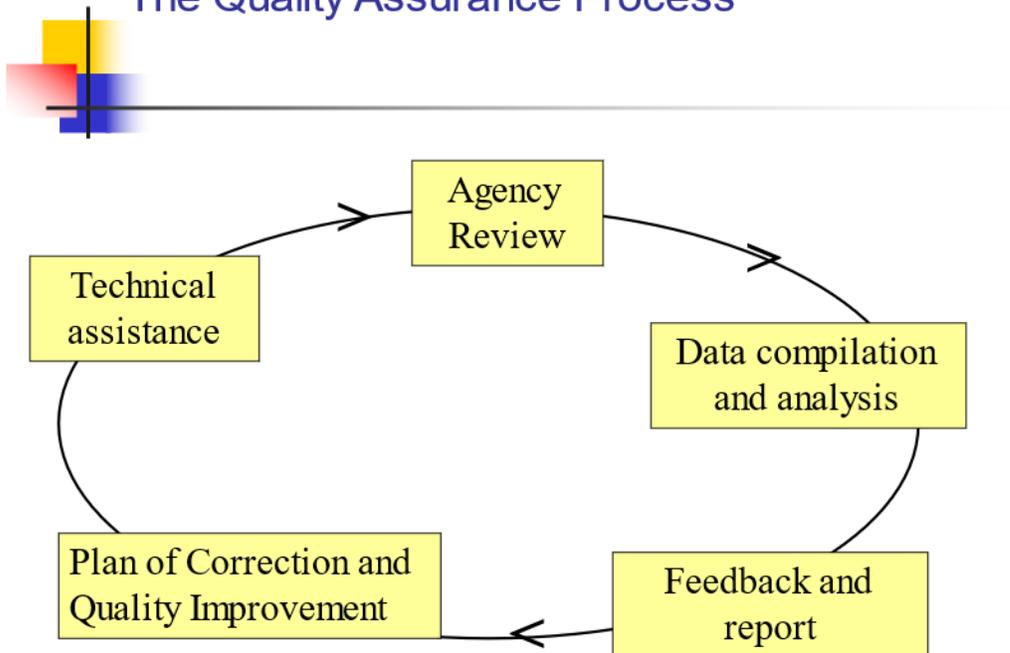

- Follow-up on Plans of Correction submitted by an agency after an agency review,
- Investigating, following up and providing support around grievances and complaints filed by individuals and families and issues discovered during the investigation of the complaint.

Lastly, as determined by the agency and the lead reviewer technical assistance may also include on-site activities such as:

- Training and support related to issues identified in the last Quality Services Reviews.
- Training, support and answering questions related to DDSD Guidelines and Policies. A list of the documents can be found at the end of this document.
- Case review and support with challenging individual situations.
- Access and collaboration with other specialists at DDSD, e.g. employment, children’s services, public safety, etc.
- Consultation around agency systems issues; e.g. intake, quality assurance/quality improvement, staff training, periodic reviews, etc.
- Attendance at agency staff or management meetings,
- Formal training sessions,
- Consultation around specific individuals or situations,
- Participation in agency public meetings

Additional information about sources of quality assurance in developmental disability services can be found in Appendix B.

The Quality Assurance Process

Format for Quality Services Review Report (Template)

PART I (First page) INTRODUCTION: No more than three paragraphs:

A review of services provided by ----- was conducted from ----- through -----.
A total of ---- individuals, representing a ---- percent sample of individuals receiving services funded by the Developmental Disabilities Services Division (DDAS), were reviewed. Services reviewed include: service coordination, home, community, work, family/respice and clinical.

Quality of services was assessed for each individual reviewed with respect to the DDSD Consumer Outcomes through interviews, observations and record reviews. Trends in services were identified via analysis of the DDSD Consumer Outcomes data. The compiled data is presented in this report as the percent of the total number of individuals scored on the outcome (N) whose services exceeded the outcome, whose services met the outcome, and whose services did not meet the outcome. Please note that “N” may change for each outcome, as an outcome is rated for a person only if it is relevant to the services the individual receives, and if the information needed to evaluate the outcome was obtained during the review process.

The review team’s findings, recommendations and areas for improvement are discussed in the agency review summary that follows. Selected examples of positive practices, recommendations and necessary changes relating to specific individuals are discussed in the accompanying table, within the framework of the relevant goals. Person-specific feedback was discussed with the individual’s service coordinator during the review whenever possible.

An overview of the team’s findings was presented at the feedback meeting on -----.

PART II: AGENCY REVIEW SUMMARY:

How did the agency address (or not) the Areas of Importance from the last quality services review?

The main body of the narrative summary is now an outline of notable strengths, concerns, or recommendations as relevant to the following areas. Use bullets to identify findings and recommendations in the following funded areas of support and organization issues. Not every area needs to be addressed. It should not be more than two to three pages.

Detailed results from the review are summarized below, with additional examples of individual practices in the attached table. This bullet ● signifies a positive practice, while this bullet ○ signifies an area that the agency needs some analysis and thought and this bullet ◐ signifies an area with practices showing positive effects but also containing elements that need to be monitored to prevent them from becoming limiting or having some other unforeseen consequence.

The table is broken into two distinct sections, the first shows numerical and percentage data for each of the Outcomes and indicators in terms of numbers Unmet, Met or Exceeded (Examples of Positive Practice). The second table reflects the comments made for each Example of Positive Practice (EPP), Necessary Changes (NC) and any Recommendation made by the reviewer. (See copies of the tables below.)

PART IV: AREAS OF IMPORTANCE AND PLAN OF CORRECTION.

Area of Concern: The Guidelines for the Quality Review Process of Developmental Disabilities Services allows the quality services review team and or agency to identify a systemic issue or service that doesn't meet the requirements for an Area of Importance and identify it as what we are calling an Area of Concern. This requires the agency to do a review of the identified area, consult with specialist and people knowledgeable in the area or service to see if there are ways to make improvements, enhance the service and bring in best practices, specifically in the areas identified.

Identified Area of Concern:

Area of Importance: An Area of Importance is a systemic issue identified by the quality services review team that has the potential to negatively affect services for the individuals supported by the agency and needs to be addressed with a written plan of correction.

Identified Area(s) of Importance:

Plan of Correction:

The agency needs to submit a written Plan of Correction addressing the Necessary Changes, Area of Concern and the Area(s) of Importance identified in the report within forty-five (45) days receipt of this report.

Technical assistance and support is available from DDS staff upon request to assist in attainment of desired outcomes. Progress toward meeting outcomes will be monitored throughout the year by the lead reviewer and agency staff to assess and assure plan implementation and effectiveness. This may include assistance in addressing the areas marked with an "X" on the Health and Wellness Guidelines Review Chart (Attachment B) and the ISA Guidelines Quality Services Review Findings (Attachment A).

The review team wishes to thank all those who participated in this review process for their assistance.

APPENDIX B: SOURCES OF QUALITY ASSURANCE AND PROTECTION FOR CITIZENS WITH DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES

Quality assurance activities will not be successful if they are relegated to a single bureaucratic cubbyhole. The Vermont developmental services system has numerous components that impact upon quality assurance. There is great value in having a multi-faceted system of quality assurance, and the participation of numerous people in quality promotion activities is a strength. In Vermont, the overall quality assurance system includes at least the following components:

I. Within the Department of Disabilities, Aging and Independent Living:

A. Designation Process. The Department of Aging and Independent Living (DAIL) designated one agency in each region of the state to ensure needed services are available through local planning, service coordination, and monitoring outcomes within their geographic region. The Designated Agency must either provide directly or contract with providers or individuals to deliver supports and services consistent with available funding; the state and local System of Care Plans; outcome requirements; and state and federal regulations, policies and guidelines.

B. Agency Reviews. Five (5) full-time staff, and one full-time registered nurses, conduct on-site reviews to assess the quality of services provided. The Quality Management Reviewers assess Medicaid funded services to assure compliance with state and federal Medicaid standards and the outcomes detailed in the Quality Management Plan. Site visits are conducted every two years with follow-up as appropriate.

C. Office of Public Guardian. Twenty-five (25) staff provide guardianship services as specified by law to about 665 adults with developmental disabilities and/or who are aging. Public Guardians play distinct quality assurance functions, including on-going monitoring of people's welfare, assessment of quality of life and functional accessibility, participation in individual support plans, and advocacy for appropriate services. Public Guardians are expected to have face-to-face contact with people for whom they are guardian at least once a month, and are available for emergencies 24 hours a day.

D. Safety and Accessibility Checks. All residences of people with developmental disabilities (except those licensed through the Division of Licensing and Protection/DAIL or a public housing entity, such as Section 8) funded by the of Developmental Disabilities Services Division are inspected for compliance with safety and accessibility standards.

E. Consumer and Family Surveys. The of Developmental Disabilities Services Division contracts for independent statewide consumer interviews to take place on a regular basis to measure the satisfaction of people receiving services. A confidential family satisfaction mail-in survey is also conducted periodically to assess how families feel about services that they receive to support their family members who live at home.

F. Critical Incident Reporting Process. Developmental service providers provide critical incident reports to the of Developmental Disabilities Services Division when certain incidents take place, such as the death of someone receiving services; use of restrictive procedures; allegations of abuse, neglect or exploitation; or criminal behavior by or against someone receiving services.

G. Grievance and Appeals. Each developmental service provider must have written grievance and appeals procedures and inform applicants and service recipients of that process. Both informal and formal grievance and appeal processes are available to people applying for or receiving developmental services, their family members, guardians and other interested individuals.

H. Ethics Committee. An Ethics Committee convenes bimonthly as needed, or on an emergency basis, to review any decisions by a Public Guardian or other developmental services staff to abate life-sustaining treatment for a person receiving services. In addition, any individual who wants advice about the ethical aspects of a decision, or is dissatisfied with a critical care decision made for a non-consenting person with developmental disabilities, may request the Ethics Committee to review the decision.

I. Human Rights Committee. A Human Rights Committee meets monthly to review policies, procedures, trends and patterns, individual situations and positive behavior support plans to safeguard the human rights of Vermonters receiving developmental services. The committee provides an independent review of any restrictive procedures while assisting individuals and agencies to develop alternatives to restrictive procedures.

J. Intermediate Care Facility for People with Developmental Disabilities (ICF/DD). The ICF/DD is licensed and monitored under federally specified guidelines by nursing staff of the Division of Licensing and Protection/DAIL. The of Developmental Disabilities Services Division conducts Utilization Reviews to determine whether continued stay is appropriate and necessary for each person residing in an ICF/DD.

K. Residential Care Home Licensure. The Department of Disabilities, Aging and Independent Living licenses residences where three or more unrelated people with disabilities live.

L. Vocational Rehabilitation Services. Vocational rehabilitation services, (as opposed to Medicaid-funded work supports), are provided and reviewed by the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation /DAIL.

II. Elsewhere in State Government:

- A. Abuse Complaints. The Department for Children and Families and the Department of Disabilities, Aging and Independent Living handle complaints of abuse and neglect for children and adults, respectively. Any human service worker, including Division of Disability and Aging Services staff, is legally mandated to file an immediate report of any suspected abuse, neglect or exploitation of a vulnerable adult. For adults with disabilities, Adult Protective Services staff conduct independent investigations of each complaint and pursue legal or other recourse as indicated by the needs of the individual.
- B. Fire Safety Regulation. Staff of the Department of Labor and Industry must approve all Level III Residential Care Homes and ICF/DD facilities. Facilities must meet appropriate standards of the National Fire Safety Code.
- C. Medicaid Fraud Unit. This Unit investigates allegations of criminal activity, including abuse, neglect or exploitation, in any Medicaid-funded facility or involving a person receiving Medicaid-funded supports. The Medicaid Fraud Unit is a specially staffed unit within the Office of the Attorney General.

III. Within Developmental Services Agencies:

- A. The Individual's Circle of Support. Each person applying for or receiving services is encouraged to develop a circle of support. If they do not already have a circle, the service provider can help them form one. The circle is a group of people who helps the individual identify his/her dreams, takes responsibility to help the person create his/her plans and budgets, and determine the quality of his/her life. The primary focus of the circle is on the individual and what that person wants and needs. A circle of support is the ultimate safety net for that person.
- B. Local Program Standing Committee. Each designated agency and service provider has a local standing committee that is made up of at least 51% consumer and families, of which 25% must be direct consumers. The purpose of the Local Program Standing Committee is to involve people receiving services in planning and decision-making regarding policies in order to increase consumer satisfaction, service and support quality, and organizational responsiveness.
- C. Internal Mechanisms. All developmental service agencies have some level of an ongoing quality improvement process as well as internal quality assurance, such as a Human Rights Committee, peer review, and Local Program Standing Committee oversight. The specific design and intensity of these efforts vary from agency to agency.
- D. Service Coordination. Service coordination often includes the functions of "monitoring" and "advocacy." For some people, the service coordinator is the focal point for individual-based quality assurance at the local level.

IV. External to the Service System:

- A. State Program Standing Committee for Developmental Services. The State Program Standing Committee for Developmental Services was created by statute in 1990, (and updated through regulation in 1998), and is required to have at least 51% of its membership consumer and families. The Governor appoints this committee of people with developmental disabilities, family members, advocates, and people with professional/advocacy expertise in the field of developmental disabilities. The committee meets monthly as a working advisory group to the of Developmental Disabilities Services Division.
- B. Vermont Developmental Disabilities Council. A broad-based, federally mandated board that provides independent oversight and systemic advocacy for the needs of people with developmental disabilities.
- C. Protection and Advocacy System. This system has two components: a legal component through the Disability Law Project (DLP) and citizen advocacy. The Disability Law Project is part of Vermont Legal Aid and has offices in Rutland, Burlington, Montpelier, Springfield and St. Johnsbury. They provide protection and advocacy services to individuals with disabilities in a wide variety of forums (e.g., court proceedings, school negotiations, administrative hearings, Social Security Administration).
- D. Regional ARC Organizations. There are local ARC offices that provide a focus for families and concerned members of the public to identify and respond to the needs of people with developmental disabilities. The Central Vermont ARC provides information, support and advocacy for individuals with disabilities and their family members from their Montpelier office, the Franklin ARC from their St. Albans office, and the Rutland ARC from their office in Rutland.
- E. Self-Advocacy. Green Mountain Self-Advocates, a statewide self-advocacy group, works to empower people with disabilities to learn to make decisions, solve problems, speak for themselves, and to exert control over their own lives. It is committed to educating and making the general public aware of the strengths, rights and desires of people with disabilities. There are presently about 18 local chapters in various stages of development around the state.
- F. Other Advocacy Groups. There are other locally based groups of concerned families and advocates. For example, Guardianship Trust provides regular, structured individually-based citizen monitoring of residential services provided by WCMH in Barre. Brandon Training School Association is an alliance of parents and other people concerned with the well being of former residents of Brandon Training School.
- G. Law Enforcement Agencies. In recent years, many local and state police have received training in the techniques of interviewing people with developmental disabilities who are victims of crime. The traditional sources of citizen law enforcement—the police, State's Attorney's, and Attorney General's offices—have played an increasingly effective role in protecting citizens with developmental disabilities who may become victims of crime.

- H. Criminal Penalties. Vermont law makes it a crime to abuse, neglect or exploit a person with a disability. The Office of Attorney General will prosecute for violations of this law.
- I. The Federal Government. Through Medicaid audits and look-behind surveys, the federal government provides a back-up system of quality assurance.
- J. Concerned Members of the Public. These include interested professionals (e.g., physicians, psychologists), members of the academic community, legislators, etc., who express their concerns through traditional channels of professional, administrative and legislative communication.
- K. Above all, individual friends, family members, guardians, coworkers, neighbors. Friends, family and neighbors provide for individuals in community settings the most important and dependable source of monitoring and advocacy – someone that will “go to bat” for you if things are not going well.
