Through the past several months of meetings, the work group has homed in on key tasks that must be implemented to make encounter data possible:

- The State, with input from the work group, needs to define what the elements of the encounter data are (service codes, modifiers, etc.). |
-The State needs to ready its MMIS to receive encounter data.

- DS providers need to first assess their readiness, and then establish plans for achieving readiness in their IT systems and business practices to submit encounter data. The State has identified a limited amount of financial resources to support needed readiness activities, and providers are in the process of submitting requests for these funds.

- Data on self-directed services paid through ARIS need to migrate to the MMIS. ARIS’s vendor, Annkissam, has identified the EDI autoclaim tool as a possible IT solution to automate this process. The State is looking to confirm provider interest in this tool, before moving forward with contract amendment to procure it. Additionally, the work group is working to answer questions and achieve clarity on specific work-flows for using the tool.

- Once encounter data submission begins, the work group will shift its focus to trouble shooting encounter data claims submission and processing issues that arise.
